WITNESS SLAYER SURRENDERS TO POLICE

TEST OF SPEED LAW OFF AS DRIVER CHANGES PLEA

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Have you ever visited the library on these warm days or warm nights?

When school is in progress, the library after seven o'clock is filled with school boys and girls studying for those "final examinations."

Once in a while a group of them will forget that silence is golden in a library and will receive nasty looks from the other patrons and a warning from the librarian.

A group of girls hide behind a big book, taking notes, chewing gum and giggling.

Slumped down in a chair, his mind high above the clouds, is another high school boy. He is reading a book on aviation.

Another boy sits at one of the tables, watching the clock and the door, the book in front of him forgotten.

At 8 o'clock the door opens and a girl comes in.

The boy breathes a sigh of relief and is conscious that his heart is beating just a wee bit faster.

For, 'tis spring — and in spring a young man's fancy—

Two school teachers, quietly go into a huddle with the librarian.

One can imagine that they are discussing the effects of mid-Victorian literature upon the youth of today.

In the magazine room sits a gentleman with the badge of an Anglo-American lodge on his lapel.

He is quite engrossed in a copy of the London Illustrated News. To him, it is a bit of home brought to Richmond — in spite of the fact that the magazine is almost a month old and the news is stale.

Two giggling stenographers are reading the American Mercury. Others who not so many months ago eagerly grasped that magazine to read Menckens' slashing editorials are reading Sinclair Lewis or Gene Stratton Porter.

Two boys are reading a scientific magazine. "Lookit, Bill," one whispers, "here's some plans for a new glider."

A gentleman is engrossed in "The Nation's Business." He carries his business even to the library, studying meaningless charts and graphs that.

YESTERDAY IN CONGRESS

DETAILS OF MURDER TOLD

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—UP—A small man with a wooden leg stumped into police headquarters late today and admitted that he shot and killed M. G. Sturtevant, star witness for the government in a liquor conspiracy trial.

The shooting occurred Wednesday night in a lonely spot in Marin county, while a federal jury deliberated the fate of nine defendants against whom Sturtevant had testified.

In admitting that he fired the shots which killed Sturtevant and wounded Mrs. Grace Berri, wife of Arnold Berri, one of the defendants, Vincent Lucich, crippled ex-convict, declared:

First On Draw
"I didn't murder him. I beat him to the draw, that's all."

Lucich was the object of a search throughout northern California at the time of his surrender. He was linked with the case by Mrs. Berri, who escaped, although seriously wounded.

Mrs. Berri told authorities at Petaluma, where she was placed in a hospital, that Lucich, who is also known as Lucchi, and Love, asked Sturtevant and herself to take a drive in Marin county and that they thought it would be a pleasant outing.

Woman Fires
When in the vicinity of Tomales Bay, Lucich drew a revolver, she said, and shot Sturtevant twice and then turned the gun on her when she screamed.

The woman said she fled from the car, escaping because Lucich's (Continued on Page 8)

SOLONS OUST DIAL PHONES

WASHINGTON, May 22.—UP—The senate revolted in a personal way against machine civilization today to restore telephone girls to its wing of the capitol.

Good naturedly, the senators agreed with Senator Glass of Virginia, a fiery Jeffersonian democrat, and ordered the new fangled dial phones removed from the senate wing and the senate office building within 30 days.

Glass told the senate that the newly installed dial phones were a nuisance that other senators agreed, and that he objected to being transformed into a telephone operator without being paid for it.

This Is New Yacht Harbor

This is the plan for the new $15,000 yacht harbor which is being planned by Harry W. Werns. The drawing shows every detail of the proposed basin, which will front on Cutting Boulevard. In the foreground can be seen the clubhouse, the marine railway, the machine shop and the store. The slips line each side of the basin and will provide berthing places for about sixty yachts.

GUILTY PLEA ENTERED BY MAN

Legality of California's speeding law must remain unsettled, following the change of plea of L. C. Peterson, charged with speeding from "not guilty as charged" to "guilty."

W. S. Roberson, attorney for Peterson, previously had announced that he would fight the case on the grounds that his client could not be sentenced on a speeding charge, because there is no speed limit in the state.

A jury had been assembled in the justice court of Judge A. A. Alstrom, in accordance with a previous request of Roberson for a jury trial. The sudden change of plea caused the case to be abruptly ended, and the juryman were allowed to proceed to their homes.

Stay Granted
Peterson was granted a 24-hour stay of judgment, and will appear again this afternoon at 2 o'clock for sentence.

Neither Roberson or Peterson volunteered any reason for the unannounced change of plea. Previously Roberson had said that he would carry the case to the highest courts of the state.

Roberson based his contention that this state has no speeding laws on the fact that during the last legislature the traffic laws of the state had been amended, but no mention was made in the revised law of amended portions of the act. It is in this unamended part of the old law, which Roberson said is not now included in the latest edition of the vehicle act, and that the clause is that which sets a speed limit in California.

Arrest Made

For this reason, Roberson said, there is no speed limit in the state, and no ordinance on which his client could be sentenced. Peterson was arrested for driving his machine 68 miles an hour in a 40-mile zone, Charles Nissen was the arresting officer.

LEWIS LOSES COURT BATTLE

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—UP—After hours of argument by S. C. Lewis, seeking to disqualify Superior Judge Victor McLucas, the court ordered the trial of the former Julian president to proceed.

His efforts to delay suddenly curbed, Lewis must face a jury tomorrow. At the adjournment today, Lewis presented seven separate motions, seeking in one way or another to cause a further continuance, but each in turn was overruled.

Lewis is accused of attempting to bribe a woman juror in the trial at which he and others were acquitted of wrecking the Julian Petroleum Corporation.

Driver Fined On Reckless Charge

Found guilty of reckless driving, John A. Robak, 888 McLaughlin street, was fined $25 in justice court here yesterday by Judge A. A. Alstrom. Robak had previously pleaded not guilty.

Lambrecht Heads Masonic Board

At the second quarterly meeting of the Richmond Masonic Board of Relief last night, E. C. Lambrecht was elected president, and Harry Ellis was elected secretary.

Mrs. Aiola Lindsay Mills, of Tillamook, Ore., is visiting in Richmond this week with Mrs. R. I. Wood.

SOLONS HIT NAVY PACT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—UP—Opponents of the London naval treaty gained two recruits in the foreign relations and naval committee today despite the fact that for the first time in more than a week the testimony contained praise of the treaty by naval officers. They are Senators Waterman, Repp., Colo., and Shipstead, farmer laborer, Minn.

Rear Admiral A. J. Hepburn, chief of the staff of the fleet, and Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, defended the treaty before the naval affairs committee.

"I believe failure to ratify this treaty," Moffett told the committee "will be almost unfavorable effect on the cordial relations now existing between the three nations concerned and will be the severest blow to the peace of the world since the violation of Belgium."

Treaty Hit

Against these two were arrayed adverse opinions expressed today by Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, and Rear Admirals Frank H. Schoenfeld and H. J. Reeves.

STAR MOTHERS LEAVE FOR FRENCH TRIP

Many members of local veteran organizations and local citizens yesterday paid final honors and wished a "bon voyage" to three Richmond Gold Star mothers who departed for New York to embark on the pilgrimage to France.

The three mothers, Mrs. Isabelle Nesbitt, Mrs. Essie Garvin and Mrs. Hannah Bevier, were the recipients of a brief and informal reception on the steps of the Memorial hall, where they were presented with flowers by George Sanderson, chairman of the veterans welfare council.

From there, they went to the Santa Fe depot, escorted by traffic officers, led by the high school band, and followed by a parade of automobiles.

At the depot, A. L. Paulsen voiced the city's official farewell, and Aubrey Wilson, chairman of the chamber of commerce, civics affairs committee, gave each a basket of fruit and candy.

GRAF ZEPPELIN LANDS AT PERNAMBUCO, BRAZIL

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, May 22.—UP—The Graf Zeppelin arrived at Giquita air field here at 6:30 p. m. 4:30 p. m. EST—completing her flight from Seville, Spain, and Friedrichshafen, Germany. She was moored at a specially built mast at 7:20 p. m.

The great air liner was welcomed by a crowd of 15,000 persons waiting at the airfield all through the afternoon.

The Graf had been expected since four p. m. At 6:15 p. m. Dr. Hugo Eckener, in command radioed the field, advising the dirigible would land in 15 minutes.

Preliminary examination was held in justice court here yesterday for Edward E. Rendell, of El Cerrito, charged with failure to support his wife, Mary E. Rendell, who lodged the complaint.

Rendell was given until June 19 to make good a promise to support his wife in the future. On that date a hearing will be held in justice court.

Man Arrested On Provide Charge

On his way to Richmond to answer charges of failure to provide for minor children, Norman Byers of Sacramento, broke down in his automobile near Davis and was unable to be present at his scheduled hearing before Justice of the Peace A. A. Alstrom.

On receipt of a telephone message from Byers, Judge Alstrom put the hearing over for one week.

LEGION POST IN PLANS FOR BIG BARBECUE

According to plans announced at last night's meeting of Richmond Post of the American Legion in Memorial hall, the barbecue to be held June 1, is going to be a huge success.

Games, dancing, races, tug of war and a baseball game between El Cerrito and Richmond posts will be featured at the festival, which will be held at Clay's Ranch, on the Franklin Canyon road.

The committee in charge is headed by Dan "Hap" Bradley, and consists of J. H. Simons, George Tandy, Julius Narvaez, Bill Crangle, Jack Johnson, W. E. Richardson and C. F. Lambie.

Final plans were made last evening for the Memorial Day baseball game in honor of the late (Continued on Page 8)

Plans Laid For Church School

It was decided to departmentalize the daily vacation school to be started in Richmond this summer. The school is being sponsored by the Council of Religious Education.

Songs, drills, games and the school work will be featured at the school, which will be open to children of from 4 to 14 years of age. The school will open Monday, June 9, and will continue for three weeks. The classes will be in session from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Man Released On Provide Charges

On the suggestion of District Attorney Rex Boyer, Herman Phillips of El Cerrito was at least temporarily released from a charge of non-support of minor children in the court of Judge A. H. MacKinnon in El Cerrito yesterday.

Phillips promised to pay $25 each month toward the support of his two children, one two months old and the other two years old, and the hearings was postponed pending his fulfillment of the agreement.

BARREL HOUSE IN WIN OVER MACHANICS

SOLONS, CARDS BOTH WIN GAMES

By UNITED PRESS

The Washington Senators increased their American league lead to three full games Thursday, winning both ends of a double-header from Boston, 3 to 2 and 13 to 1.

Bump Hadley of the Senators and Milt Gaston of the Red Sox hooked up in a luring duel, each allowing five hits in the first game, Washington scored all of its three runs in an eight inning attack and Boston scored twice in the ninth.

Bob Burke held Boston to six hits in the second game while his mates slugged two pitchers for 18 hits.

The New York Yankees bested the Philadelphia Athletics in a home run carnival, winning both games of a double-header, 10 to 1 and 20 to 13. George Pipgras held the champions to six hits in the opener and three Philadelphia pitchers were unable to stop the Yanks. The second game was a slugfest with the Yanks using four pitchers and the Athletics six.

The two teams made a total of 14 home runs in the two games. Lou Gehrig hit three home runs in the second game, and Babe Ruth hit two in the first and a third in the second, giving him six home runs in the past two days.

Rip Collins outpitched Clinton Brown and the St. Louis Browns defeated Cleveland, 3 to 2. Brown weakened in the seventh and allowed the Browns all of their runs. Blue's single with the bases filled and Manush's double drove in the scores.

George Uhle's pitching and hitting gave the Detroit Tigers a 6 to 1 win over the Chicago White Sox. Uhle allowed the Sox only six hits and struck out four men. He made three singles in four times at bat, scoring two runs and driving in another.

National League:
St. Louis Cardinals clinched a brilliant advance during which they have won 13 of their last 14 contests, by defeating Cincinnati, 4 to 2, and taking the National league lead. When the Cards started their advance, May 7, they were tied with the Phillies for last place.

Ben Fries, Cincinnati rookie, held the Cards in check until the seventh inning when singles by Gehrig, Fisher, Donhit and Prisch produced the tying and winning runs.

Socks Seibold pulled the Brooklyn Robins out of the National league lead, pitching the Boston Braves to a 5 to 5 victory. Seibold won his own game with a single which drove in the winning run in the ninth.

Chuck Klein's home run with thevenow on base in the twelfth inning gave Philadelphia a 10 to 8 win over the New York Giants.

The Chicago Cubs moved back within striking distance of the league leaders, defeating Pittsburgh, 12 to 5. The league champions now are in fifth place, two games behind the Cardinals. Withness of the Pirates pitchers aided the Cubs, who scored two runs in the seventh when Glenn Spencer walked three batters and added five more runs after Percy Jones walked four men in the eighth.

Barbecue, Ball Games Planned By DeMolay Boys

A stated meeting of the Richmond chapter of DeMolay was held last night, with Raymond Linn, master council, presiding. Tickets are now ready for disposal for the barbecue and picnic to be held at Alvarado Park on June 14. Washington Chapter of Hayward will visit the local meeting on June 12.

Baseball teams of the Richmond and Alameda chapters will meet at 10:30 o'clock on the morning of May 30, on the First street diamond. Jack Hosmer, captain of the second string baseball team of the local organization, last night challenged Bob Peters, captain of the first string nine, to a contest. Date for the game was not set.

The committee in charge of the picnic will meet tonight at the home of Bob Peters, Fifth street, to complete final details.

A visiting DeMolay from Butte, Montana, was a guest at last night's meeting.

Ray Linn and Joe Linn of the Richmond chapter attended an associate DeMolay meeting in San Francisco Thursday night.

Gambling Ship Raid Probed

LOS ANGELES, May 22.—UP—As far as could be determined, the five armed men who assertedly boarded the gambling ship Montalcone, three miles off Seal Beach and drove the operators ashore, were still in command tonight.

The district attorney's office of Los Angeles county promised an investigation, as requested by attorneys for Nick and George Oswald, part owners of the Montalcone. However, officials said that the boat probably was anchored off Orange county. If it merits such action, the case is to be turned over to the government and Orange county.

"Doc" Daugherty, a disgruntled part owner, is said to have led the raiding party Tuesday night.

HIGH ATHLETES GATHER AT BANQUET

To the strains of the Navy Blue and Red, the battle song that has sent scores of Richmond union high school teams to victory, the athletes of the blue and red laid plans for victory on future gridirons, baseball diamonds, basketball floors and tennis court at their first annual athletic banquet last night.

"Maj" or Ivan W. Hill, head coach at Richmond union high school, acted as master of ceremonies at the gala affair. He spoke in praise of the sportsmanship shown by Richmond high's athletes during his sojourn as coach at that institution, and asked the boys to continue with that same brand of sportsmanship during the coming year. He pointed out with pride that Richmond high had been victorious in 78 percent of its athletic contests ever since records have been kept of its achievements in the field of sports, and requested that the boys who will see action under Richmond's colors in future contests maintain or add to that admirable record.

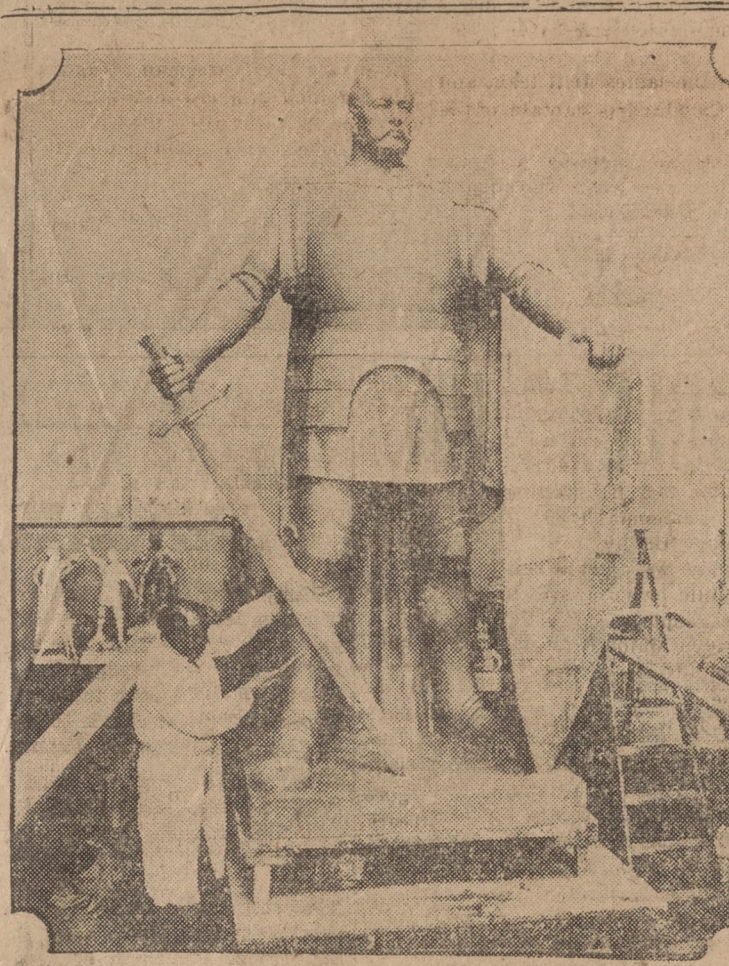

W. McCordle, a member of the athletic staff at the University of California, and Coach Andrews, U. C. football line coach, were the speakers of the evening.

McCordle spoke of the requisites for athletic achievements at the university in Berkeley, and pointed out that 31 kinds of athletics are open to university athletes in the nearby college city.

Andrews spoke of his experiences as football coach at St. Mary's and later as assistant coach at the University of California.

Principal B. Z. Tucker and Ph. Hempler, assistant coach at the local high school, also said a few words during the dinner. Show pep talks were given by several of the athletes of Richmond union.

BARREL HOUSE IN WIN OVER MACHANICS

The Barrel House yesterday afternoon defeated the Mechanics in a 7 to 4 contest at the First street diamond.

The Barrel House scored three runs in the second inning, after the Mechanics had gotten off to a one run lead.

Gregory led off for the Mechanics with a hit and was brought in by O'Rourke's double.

The Barrel House scored in the second on two walks and a home run by Taylor, who planted the ball over the fence to bring in Moltoza and Gillan ahead of him.

Two more runs were scored by the Mechanics in their half of the second inning to tie the score. Soby got a hit, Kogler, sacrificed, Schmidt hit, scoring Soby and Carson scored Schmidt after Gregory had advanced him with a single.

In the third inning the Mechanics took the lead with another run. Elison was walked, Arlett was safe on a fielder's choice, Elison being forced at second, Taylor to Schimpff. A single by Soby then scored Arlett.

In the sixth inning, the Barrel House scored four runs to win the contest. Vianni hit; Fitzgerald walked; Whetzier was safe on an error and Vianni scored on a wild pitch. Moltoza singled, bringing in Fitzgerald and Whetzier. Colo singled to score Moltoza.

During the festivities the Mechanics made seven hits while the Barrel House made four.

Protests Made In Penn. Vote

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—UP—Mutual statements of distress regarding vote counting in the bitter primary fight for the Republican nomination for governor were exchanged today by the rival Pinchot-Brown factions.

Gifford Pinchot, riding victory in his grasp, issued a warning against any possible attempts to "count him out" in the complications of returns from Tuesday's election.

The headquarters of Francis Shunk Brown tonight declared they intended to make a "rigid investigation" of conditions in Luzerne county where Pinchot was given a plurality of about 25,000 over Brown—more than Pinchot's net state lead in the nearly complete returns.

Officials at the Brown headquarters declared that they had ten ballot boxes opened up in Luzerne county today by court order and they claimed it was found that Brown polled 388 more votes in those boxes than did Pinchot.

Frozen Flame Shown At Meet

ATLANTA.—The recent Atlanta meeting of the American Chemical Society saw freezing of a flame by a breath of gas previously taken into the lungs of Dr. Thomas Midgley, Jr., widely known discoverer of Ethyl gasoline. The feat was performed in demonstrating the new refrigerant "fluoro-chloro-methane" by which he expects ultimately to do for the tropics what fire does for the arctic regions.

The Seals made four errors and only four hits but beat the second place Oaks, 5 to 3. Bases on balls were followed by hits to give the Seals victory.

Taking an early lead and never losing it, the Angels easily beat the first place Senators, 8 to 4.

Hollywood took both games of a double header with Portland, winning the first, 7 to 6 by scoring three runs in the last of the ninth, and capturing the second, 2 to 1.

Seattle made two runs in the first of the tenth inning to beat the San Francisco Missions, 8 to 6.

mand for treaty consideration this session with an announcement that he would call 14 or 15 more witnesses whose testimony will require at least another week.

"So far as I can see," Johnson said, "the only persons in favor of six inch cruisers provided in the treaty are the gentlemen who went to London and there is division even among them."

Witnesses Called
"My purpose is to call enough witnesses, civilian and naval, to make it perfectly plain to every one what this treaty is."

Shipstead, a member of the foreign relations committee, participated in questioning witnesses in the treaty from the standpoint of the United States. Waterman followed a similar line in naval affairs.

Replying to Waterman, Hughes said six inch gun cruisers were of no value to the United States anywhere except when accompanied by the fleet.

No Parity
"It's a toy ship, isn't it?" Waterman asked.

"Yes sir, when on detached service."
"Do you consider the treaty gives parity with the British?"
"No sir."

After the hearing Waterman was asked if he had heard anything that would merit ratification of the treaty.

"I certainly have not," he replied. "I think I blew a hole in it."

Other committee opponents are Senators Hale, Mr. Johnson, Cal. Oddie, Nev., and Robinson Ind. all Republicans, and Broussard, Dem. La., and Shipstead, farmer-laborer, Minn., Senators Tydings, Dem., Md. and MacKellar, Dem. Tenn., are understood to be possible opponents.

Hughes, Reeves and Schofield vigorously dissented to important treaty provisions. Reeves said it would provide neither six inch, nor eight inch gun cruiser parity with Great Britain and would imperil our commerce in the Pacific. Schofield suggested Britain insisted on six inch cruisers in hope he would refuse to build them and thus fall about 100,000 tons below cruiser parity.

DIGEST POLL SHOWS DRY LAW APPEAL IN MINORITY

NEW YORK, May 22.—UP—The final figures in the Literary Digest's nation wide prohibition poll, which began in the late days of last winter, were made public tonight.

Of the 20,000,000 ballots sent out, a grand total of 4,806,464 returned, marked as follows:
For enforcement, 1,464,098, or 30.46 percent.

For modification — 1,399,314, or 29.11 percent.

For repeal — 1,943,052, or 40.43 percent.

The questions asked were:
1—Do you favor the continuance and strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment? and the Volstead Act?

2—Do you favor a modification of the Volstead law to permit for light wines and beers?

3—Do you favor a repeal of the prohibition Amendment?

A majority vote for strict enforcement was registered in Arkansas, Kansas, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee. Five of the states gave a majority for repeal — Connecticut, Louisiana, Nevada, New Jersey and Rhode Island. The final figures show the two extremes as being neck and neck in opposite directions, that is, Kansas showed a dry vote of 57.67 percent, while Nevada had a wet vote of 57.61 percent.

Thirteen states, the majority of them in the south, gave more than 40 percent for enforcement. They are: Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Eighteen states registered a total vote of more than 40 percent for repeal: Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Wyoming and the District of Columbia.

2 Killed In Building Fall

NEW YORK, May 22.—UP—The steel framework of a new four-story building in mid-Manhattan, buckled and collapsed this afternoon, taking the lives of two of the workmen and sending seven others to hospitals with serious injuries.

More than 100 workmen were employed on the building being constructed by the Gottfried Baking company.

A steel girder in the basement substructure of the building is believed to have buckled first, undermining the whole framework and causing the many tons of metal to collapse.

The roar of falling steel was deafening for blocks around and ambulances were on the scene before an alarm was turned in.

The fact that men had been at work on the girders at various levels, led at first to the belief that many had been killed.

Nurses Fight Fire In Night Clothes

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—UP—Clad only in night garments, sixteen nurses at the U. S. Marine hospital here battled flames in the institutions' central hall early today, and insured against a panic among the patients. Prompt arrival of firemen prevented much damage. The blaze was believed to be of incendiary origin.

FIRE THREATENS S. F. MISSION DISTRICT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—UP—Spectators in a motion picture theater were led to safety and two men operating an oil truck narrowly escaped death while extensive damage was caused by fire that burned in two adjoining blocks of the Mission district here this evening.

About 800 persons were attending a matinee performance in the Rialto theater, watching a film entitled "The Sacred Flame" when the first conflagration broke out in back of the building.

Within a few minutes three alarms had been sounded by the fire department and one of the house managers of the theater stepped to the stage to assure his customers of their safety. He ordered lights turned on and instructed girl ushers, who helped everyone to leave in orderly manner.

The oil truck was unloading its cargo into underground tanks at the theater and was moved away just in time to prevent an explosion.

A heavy wind blew sparks to nearby apartment and flat buildings, setting fire to roofs a block and a half away from the theater. Many families were homeless as a result of the blaze or the water that flooded their quarters.

The conflagration was brought under control more than an hour after it started.

There is only one remedy for a broken or cracked plug, and that is to get a new one, states L. G. Evans, general service manager, of the National Automobile club.

NEW REVOLT FLARES IN INDIA

By WEBB MILLER
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

BOMBAY, India, May 22.—UP—Revolt flamed in the heart of Bombay tonight, as thousands of Barmajis, or Independence protagonists gathered in the Esplanade Maidan here in a mass meeting, whose attendance was estimated at from 75,000 to 100,000 persons.

Hundreds of women dressed in bright dresses were present. Many wore diamond, pearl and other semi-precious stone ornaments in their noses.

The attendance of women is significant, indicating the extent to which the Nationalists have succeeded in interesting them in the movement.

Volunteers linked arms and formed a vast outline of the map of India. Inside the living boundary the crowd squatted on the ground around a platform decorated with home-made flags of the all-India National Congress.

J. V. Patel, the fourth to lead the civil disobedience campaign against British rule in the present series of uprisings, addressed the meeting.

Scenes he witnessed yesterday at Dharasana were described by Patel in his speech. He mentioned that the United Press correspondent was the only foreign correspondent to witness the happenings there.

Evans, general service manager, of the National Automobile club.

NOTED PLAYERS
STARRING IN LUMMOX

Among the well known screen and stage figures in "LummoX" the United Artists all-dialogue screen version of Fannie Hurst's novel which opens tomorrow at the Fox-California theater, are Myrtle Stedman and Danny O'Shea, who interpret two of the leading characters so realistically that the author declares they might have stepped right out of the pages of her favorite novel.

Miss Stedman, who plays her greatest talking picture role in Herbert Brenon's production for United Artists, and O'Shea, who makes his dialogue film debut as a romantic young policeman, share acting honors with Winifred Westover, Ben Lyon, William Collier Jr., Edna Murphy, Clara Langner, Dorothy Janis, Torben Meyer, Myrtle Brailas, Cosmo Kyle Bellue, Lydia Yeaman Titus, Bobby Ullman, Fan Bourke, Ida Darling and other members of the large cast.

O'Shea was a well known juvenile and leading man on the legitimate stage before Mack Sennett signed him to star in comedies. He was under contract to Sennett for two and a half years and later was starred by F. B. O. As a free lance player he appeared in several big silent pictures winning outstanding success in "Manhattan Cocktail." About a year ago, he was seriously injured while working in a picture and spent seven months in a hospital.

The "LummoX" company rehearsed from early morning until midnight for a solid month in preparation for the filming and microphoning of the picture. Miss Hurst, who wrote the dialogue of Elizabeth Neeham's scenario, was a daily visitor on the United Artists lot during the shooting of "LummoX." The famous rovelist and her husband, Jack Donaghy, went to Hollywood as the guests of Joseph M. Schenck, head of United Artists and remained until "LummoX" was completed.

Tulip Time To Be Presented Here Tonight

Final arrangements have been made for "Tulip Time," an operetta, which will be presented in the Roosevelt Junior High school tonight.

The operetta is said to be the most colorful ever held in this city.

Combinations of fighting and colorful background of tulips give a pleasing effect. There will be ten changes of colors.

Costumes for the play are being made under the direction of Mrs. Norman Mpsbet and Miss Snow.

Sunday School Plans Picnic

The annual picnic of the First Presbyterian church and Sunday school will be held Saturday at East Shore park. Games and other amusements are being planned for the outing. Each of the participants is asked to bring his own lunch, although additional refreshments will be served.

Transportation to the picnic grounds will be furnished those wishing it, when automobiles will leave the church at 1:30 o'clock.

SOUND GRANDEUR COLOR

BY C. J. VETHELEN

When both sound and color is combined in such pictures as The Rogue Song in which Lawrence Tibbett makes his bow to the motion picture screen, one then realizes what these two new elements mean to our entertainment.

This entire picture is offered in Technicolor; not just an incidental scene or two, but the entire production. And that it lends itself to color is very evident after having seen the picture. With its Russian locale and background colorful costumes are quite appropriate.

That we appreciate sound in motion pictures and accept it as whole heartedly as we do, is entirely due to the fact that Radio has accustomed our ears to the quality of sound offered us in pictures. Many years ago when sound was first attempted with motion pictures and the phonograph was used for its transmission, we simply would not accept the ghastly sound that seemed to emanate from the lips of the players. Radio, however, has accustomed our ears to the mechanical tones.

We forget there is anything mechanical about the sound with each succeeding visit to the theatre. In The Rogue Song, we actually rave over Tibbett and the singing he offers us. These great highlights in motion picture making compel us to admit that the combining of sound with pictures was worth-while if for only an occasional picture of this type.

Might we say that when you are viewing a picture and sound is not just what you might expect it to be, that you have patience. Remember the quick turn over in the motion picture industry to sound meant a tremendous task not only in the equipping of houses for sound, but in educating all mechanical personnel from the studios to the men in the booth in the theatres.

Then many different makes of sound reproducing equipments were put on the market, so the task of the man in the booth was doubled. This burden was not put on the studios as they decided upon one method, one type of equipment and mastered it. The man in the booth must master all types.

So, it might be well to remember when there is a break or a stop in the picture or a dimming of sound the same thing might happen in the booth that happens to your radio set. It requires a little time to locate the trouble, and possibly the machine must be stopped to rectify it. Be tolerant.

One is rather glad, however, that the color idea has not been abandoned after seeing such a picture as The Rogue Song, with Lawrence Tibbett, entirely in color.

Flier Sacrifices
Finances For Another's Flight

MEXICO CITY.—The willing self-sacrifice of a fellow-aviator, Capt. Antonio Cardenas, who contributed a sum originally subscribed to finance a flight he himself had planned, has gone to swell the fund now almost completed for Col. Roberto Fierro's projected flight over North and South America, Africa and Europe.

After an attempt to break Lindbergh's time record between Washington and Mexico City, and planned for early May, Fierro intends immediately to embark on the long and hazardous aerial trip to Madrid and Paris, by way of Brazil and Africa.

Cardenas, who is now a pilot with the Mexican subsidiary of Pan-American Airways, Inc., last year began laying his plans for an attempt to complete the goodwill trip between this capital and New York City, on which Capt. Emilio Carranza lost his life. As Carranza is a native son of Coahuila, prominent personages in that state, quickly started collection of the money he would need for such a venture. The subscriptions collected have been held in trust by Governor Nazario Ortiz Garza, of Coahuila.

A letter just written to the governor by Cardenas, authorities him with the permission of the subscribers, to turn over to Fierro the entire amount. While he continues to fly his mail and passenger plane between Vera Cruz and Merida, Yucatan, he will no longer be able to look forward to the flight which might bring him honor and fame. These hopes he has placed behind him. But if Colonel Fierro succeeds in his ambitious project, the mail pilot who sacrificed his own opportunity will have played a part in the larger achievement. Fierro has publicly expressed his appreciation.

Rewards Offered For Tot's Slayer

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 22.—UP.—The governor of Iowa spurred search tonight for the slayer of 9-year old Evelyn Lee by offering a reward of $500 for his capture.

Governor John Hammill's offer brought the total reward to $675 but the murderer still remained at large despite blood hounds, crime experts and military police, who were called into the case after Evelyn's body was found in a vacant lot near her home yesterday. Her captor had mistreated her before strangling her to death.

The last of the 13 suspects was released late today with the admission by authorities that they were no nearer the capture of the murderer than they had been when the crime was discovered.

Flier Killed As Plane Hits Wire

ESCONDIDO, May 22.—UP.—Corp. Albert Wassell, 22, Philadelphia aviator, attached to the Marine station in San Diego, died today when his plane struck a high tension wire while making a forced landing and toppled into Lake Hodges near here.

Sgt. Lee Clark, who was on a practice flight with Wassell, saw his comrade fall, and returned in his plane to the Marine base and reported the accident.

Boatmen on the lake said they put out immediately and almost reached Wassell as he stripped off his goggles and disappeared for the third time. The body had not been recovered.

Ingagi Has Appeal For All Classes

The most attractive feature of "Ingagi," the wonder film which is coming to the Richmond theatre May 27th, 28th and 29th, is that it appeals to all classes.
Whether you like animal pictures or not, you cannot fail to be intrigued by certain elements in this amazing record of adventures in Africa.

Women will like it because of a startling feature — the discovery of creatures apparently half-ape, half-human — even a queer little child.

Men will be thrilled by the terrific encounters with ferocious beasts.

Children love the sensations of the jungle scenes, and especially will they like Ingagi, because of the sound effects.

It is a picture for everybody.

DENNIS KING
MAKES HIT
IN FILM

When a stage production is rendered upon the audible screen it is natural to draw a comparison. But in the case of "The Vagabond King" which opened at the Fox-California theater yesterday, a comparison is a pity means of expressing the glamorous wonderment of this marvelous screen version.

In fact, the film adaptation is so far superior in thrills and sheer beauty that there is no comparing it with the original, beautiful as the original was.

Dennis King, as the master of the sword, the leader of the vagabonds, the redeemer of Paris and the captor of a princess' heart, leaps into the very front rank of romantic actor-singers of the cinema in his gorgeous portrayal of Francis Villon, the poet-hero of
"The Vagabond King."

The period of the plot is 1433,
the late middle ages, Louis XI (played by G. P. Heggie) is the weakling king of France, backed at Paris by the Burgundian army.
By a quirk of fate, Dennis King becomes sovereign for a week. It is during this brief reign that he meets Louis' niece, the Princess
Katherine, played by Jeanette
MacDonald, and falls in love with her. By clever generalship, King outwits and defeats the Burgun-dians with the help of his faithful vagabond adherents. Paris is thus saved, but the treacherous Louis decides that King is too powerful and that he must be hanged.

It is when the hero is about to have his life snuffed out on the gibbet that Katherine takes a part in the proceedings and saves the day in a tremendously powerful dramatic climax.

There is a picture so bewilderingly wonderful, what with its porgeous Technicolor treatment thruout, its powerful plot, stupendous sets, breathtaking action, romantic glamour and musical richness both

NEVER ALONE

I am never alone:
For I see each thing
That we shared together—
Remembering;

A summer day
And the haze of heat,
A winding road
Stretching warm and sweet
A rocky beach
With its sun-kissed sand,
Word of your lip,
Touch of your hand.

I am never alone:
For I see again
The blur of lights
Through an evening's rain,
And hear your step
In the blazing street,
And feel your warmth
Through the storm and sleet.

And life is good:
I am not alone—
For the hillside speaks
And each brick and stone
And the flaming tree
And each little thing
That we shared together—
Remembering!

MARGUERITE JANVRIN ADAMS

"It Lasts Out the Other Things"

WOMEN must be thankful—both as earners themselves and as the dependents of earners—that the economic unemployment crisis is not to be yielding to treatment. But there's another sort of unemployment which is more or less chronic among women, although comparatively little is written about its causes and cure. There are too many women, especially middle-aged ones, who haven't enough work for their emotions. They are actually suffering from emotional unemployment—because the job on which most of their lives have been concentrated has walked out on them, and because they have neglected for too long the job of living, which was far more of a permanency.

Not to be unnecessarily cryptic, we mean that, in our opinion, many a woman in the forties and fifties would be infinitely happier had she spent the preceding twenty years in loving her husband more and her children less. Or perhaps not less, but differently. They were entitled to all that a devoted gardener gives growing plants—the best soil and surroundings for development, unceasing effort to ward off pests and diseases, the clean sunshine of warm affection.

But children—unlike plants—not only grow; they GO. In twenty years or so the time has come when they are not children but men and women with jobs and marriages and lives of their own. Alas for the mother, all of whose "life is in her children"! Her emotional occupation is gone. What, then, is left to this unemployed mother? Most women have to love somebody! What, indeed, is left to her—unless she be widowed, but the love which we think should always have been the greatest thing in her world, the love for the lover who made himself her husband? He came first, before the children. She is a wife and a fortunate woman to whom he always comes first.

THE thing which many a woman seems to forget is that her closest intimacy with her youngsters is almost inflexibly limited to a certain number of years, whereas her relationship with their father may give the richest and happiest meaning to her whole life.

Happy married love—its subtle blending of passion, comradeship, tenderness and perfect understanding—surely is as near a permanency as these shifting earthly scenes afford. "It lasts out the other things," rightly reflects Mary, devoted mother yet—at the end—more deeply devoted wife, in Storm Jameson's absorbing and excellently written new novel, "The Voyage Home." It is a book in which the intelligent woman reader must follow with utmost sympathy the heroine's "voyage home" to the heart of the man she loved and married and lost a while and found when everything else, including her children, failed her.

Mary was one of those devotedly loving mothers, from whom children are the first to break away. That was how she lost her son Richard, her best-beloved. First, he fell in love with the wrong girl. Then, when his mother at last decided that she "must give him more rope in the firm," it was too late. "I must get away and make something of myself," he told her firmly.

ALL the children went, in the perfectly natural course of events, but Hugh, the husband, remained. "Now she wanted Hugh," we read, "not as young Mary Roxby had wanted him, to complete her life and love and admire her, but because without him her life meant nothing. It was senseless andavorless."

She told him: "You can't offset a marriage like ours. It is out the other things." And when he fell ill and she nursed him tirelessly and the crisis came, "she was afraid." "The thought that Hugh might die frightened her. His death would leave her stranded in a world in which every one else was indifferent to her. She would be left, in an isolation worse than that of the grave, because she would be able to feel and think. Hugh was the only person in the world who knew her. He knew everything about her, the mean and unkind things as well as the good. It was to him she belonged in the intimacy of marriage. He was the only person in whom she was safe and at home. She had been hurt and betrayed by him, she had failed him, turned from him, and yet he only was with her in those depths where each of us is as defenseless as the day we are born. The depths where we are ourselves and not the persons we would like to be. Without him she would be friendless. She would be alone."

That's how it is, in real marriage—and why it is that such marriage indeed "lasts out the other things," including children, for a woman.

Plants for Hanging Baskets

By Karin Broberg
Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

WHEN selecting plants for a hanging basket do not make the mistake of using several varieties in one basket. The effect is not nearly so artistic when different varieties are crowded into a small space.

Plants in hanging baskets should have a soil composed of good garden soil, manure and sand. The whole should be thoroughly mixed together and pulverized before using.

Othonna crassifolia, generally known as pickle plant, is one of the most satisfactory plants that we have for hanging baskets. It is a very rapid growing, trailing vine. It is especially desirable because it will flourish with little moisture and is seldom attacked by insect pests of any kind. This vine requires plenty of sun. The leaves of this vine are almost cylindrical. The flowers are daisy-like and are borne upon thread-like stems.

Lysimachia humularia (creeping Jenny, or Charlie) is a strong, rapid grower. Its foliage is always pleasing and the little yellow flowers are quite attractive.

Tradescantia is another desirable plant for the hanging basket. Tradescantia zebrina is the reddish-purple leaved sort, the little flowers are red. Tradescantia fluminensis has white flowers.

English ivy is another plant that will grow well in either water or soil. A plant tablet added to the water will cause this vine to produce an abundance of foliage.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

In planning menus for warm weather, the housewife should select meat dishes that will serve for more than one meal. One does not want to spend long hours in the kitchen more than one or two days a week, and it is well to go in for foodbox preparedness in case of a sultry day when a cold buffet supper seems more appealing than a hot dinner.

Veal loaf is an excellent choice for this season of the year, for it is delicious served either hot or cold. It is light and appetizing, and equally good for luncheon or dinner. The less expensive cuts of meat can be utilized in this dish as slow cooking guarantees tenderness. Shoulder, flank or shank cuts are almost equally good for grinding.

When served hot veal loaf can be accompanied by tomato sauce or current jelly sauce. Cold, it should be banked in crisp greens and vinegary beets, or cucumber and tomato salad.

2½ pounds veal, ground
¼ salt pork, chopped
1 onion
1 green pepper
2 eggs
1½ cups bread or cracker crumbs
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika

Mix the salt pork, onion and green pepper with the veal and stir in the eggs, which have been well beaten. Add the bread crumbs, parsley and seasonings and stir all together thoroughly. Mold in square or oblong battered baking pan and bake in oven at 375 degrees for forty-five minutes.

Correct Sealing Necessary for Good Arrangement

By Alma Zais

HERE THE WALL PANEL WHICH ILLUSTRATES AN OLD ALLEGORICAL THEME IS IN KEEPING WITH THE DIGNIFIED PATTERN OF THE CURTAINS AND FURNITURE

Dear Miss Zais:
I am planning to refurnish my living room and find myself in need of your assistance. I don't want to risk the mistakes that I might make unassisted.

I am enclosing a plan of the room because I'm not sure where to place the new pieces after I get them. I am discarding all the old furnishings except the rug. This is soft gray-green with a border in a slightly deeper shade. I should like the color scheme of the room to be gold and green, with perhaps touches of brown. Do you think that's a good choice? The room faces north.

I am planning to buy a Queen Anne or Early American sofa; a wing chair and another chair with upholstered back and seat and wooden arms. What should I have these pieces covered in? Also want to get a table, but don't want a gateleg. If possible I will also purchase a secretary. What sort of chair shall I get to go with it? I also have a radio and a very fine oil painting of autumn birch trees. Where shall I put these? What kind of draperies and glass curtains shall I get? If I use cretonne drapes what kind of wall hanging can I use? I am planning to have portieres at the doorway. What shall they be made of? I shall have to wait for the necessary small things such as lamps and tables to complete the room, but I would be very grateful for your suggestions about them now.

Mrs. H. F. S.

A Dignified Scheme for a Small Living Room

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IN THE work of the department, arrangement has seemed to present a big problem to almost all inquirers, and since good arrangement depends so much upon a correct choice of furniture to begin with, it is perhaps given more than its rightful share of attention in these columns.

Mrs. S. comes to us with the problem of refurnishing a rather small living room, and our first recommendation to her is this: If when selecting and buying her furniture she will realize that each piece—each chair, sofa, table or what-not—should be in scale with the space it is to occupy—that is, not too high, too deep or too stuffy for the proportions of the room—she will have taken the first important step in the right direction. In order to obtain comfort and convenience for those who must live in the room, as well as to create a charming decorative scheme, it is absolutely necessary to regard this point.

Mrs. S. has not asked for a dignified living room, but we have outlined one of this type to illustrate how easily the effect may be achieved with a few well chosen pieces of furniture supplemented by hangings and upholstery, which further accentuate the theme.

The illustration shows a number of charming English pieces for such a room, and suggests the decorative quality of built-in bookshelves either side of the windows. If, after Mrs. S. has considered the room which has developed around our suggestions, she still prefers a colonial scheme, she may write again and we will send another plan by mail.

First let us study the diagram of arrangement and note the pleasant groupings made around the window wall which is the point of interest in this room. Instead of the secretary mentioned by Mrs. S. we have indicated a Jacobean table placed at right angles to the two windows, where it may be used with comfort for both reading and writing at all hours of the day and night.

In the space at each side of the windows Mrs. S. may have shallow recessed shelves built by a good carpenter who will paint them the color of the walls. Or, if she does not own her present home, she may have him make shelves of the removable type. Of course such a scheme presupposes a collection of books. If there are too few to permit a good arrangement on shelves, then it would perhaps be best to use the table horizontally before the windows.

Ordinarily we would recommend a five-foot sofa for a room of this size, but here the placement of the two doorways makes it a bit awkward to use two chairs in a group with the sofa. The long wall will accommodate a larger divan, and the six-foot size is shown for greater seating capacity. The sofa illustrated in the photograph departs from the usual design and is quite distinctive. The open arm chair and the tables also possess individuality and charm.

Even though the room has northern exposure, Mrs. S. may carry out her preferred colors of gold and green, provided she introduces plenty of additional color in book bindings and accessories. The gray-green rug gives us an admirable foundation for overtones of Jacobean linen or cretonne printed in a crewlwork pattern showing fine rich colors. Glass curtains must be of plain ecru voile or coarse net. There will be much gold and green in the design of the Jacobean linen, and winding brown stems which will furnish the keynote for the use of soft plum-brown velvet upon the divan, above which Mrs. S. may hang a panel of old damask or printed linen of a design in keeping with the room.

Although the photograph shows a particularly good wall hanging for the room illustrated, the north room would require a pattern in somewhat lighter coloring, and in so small a room as Mrs. S. describes the hanging should not be of a size that is overpowering. If she cannot find just the right thing for this space, then the oil painting in autumn colors may be used above the divan, and in this room—especially if it is a painting of true artistic worth—we believe we should prefer the picture to the hanging.

The wing chair may be uphol-

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoffman

MOTHER laments the fact that her son, a junior high school student, spends a couple hours every afternoon in outdoor sports. She says, "Just now it is baseball, and I think he is too old to waste so much time in play. I tell him it would be better to study and prepare for the examinations that will soon be here, but he will not take my advice. What would you advise me to do?"

I advise you to allow your boy to play. He needs it. Every school child should spend at least two hours a day in the fresh air. This is essential to good health. Outdoor play is giving your boy the best form of exercise, and this is so necessary to the growing child.

Of course he could obtain these two requisites of good health in performing outdoor home duties, but every child needs play. Nowhere has he a better opportunity to learn self-control, sportsmanship and social cooperation. These are important lessons every boy and girl should learn. You give your boy good food and proper rest because you know this is very necessary, but deny him outdoor play and you are depriving him of one of the greatest human needs. We all need companionship and recreation but this is especially essential to the school child.

In your duty of character building you will find no stronger ally than play and those wholesome out-door games in which your boy indulges so enthusiastically solve to a great extent his leisure, a part of childhood that has become a problem to parents.

School and city authorities realize the advantage of play and have established playgrounds; cities are being planned as play parks and much attention is being given in communities throughout the country to give our young folks playing space.

So do not worry about your boy spending two hours a day in play. He is not wasting time. He is getting his recreation that means an invigorated body and a spirit elevated by the joy of pure recreation.

You have never thought of play in just this way, have you? Of course, you know school children need relaxation. Let them get this through the health giving recreation of athletics.

Think It Over

By Alfalfa Smith

DO YOU look upon opposition as something to be side-stepped? Do you know that the great in this world are those who meet and overcome obstacles?

I wish this talk to apply particularly to those young men and those young women who wish to get married and who find there is opposition on the part of their parents. Anything that is worth having is worth fighting for and the battle makes victory all the sweeter.

Obstacles present a problem which must be solved. Why not give some thought to the wisest of saying: "Oh, what's the use?"

ENGLAND'S new Poet Laureate gets on the job: PREMIER McDONALD (on phone); to Poet Laureate John Masefield—I say, old top, how about a poem?

POET LAUREATE—Wot's your blooming hurry, Ramsay? PREMIER—You've been on the job a week now. It's high time you showed results.

POET—I haven't anything in mind yet; not a single idea.

PREMIER—What? You mean to say you've loafed a full week on the job?

POET—Afraid so, Ramsay. Waiting for a dashed inspiration to hit me.

PREMIER—Come, come, now, Masefield. You can't act like that. That's why we let our old Poet Laureate go. He couldn't speed up production.

POET—You don't understand, Mac. I can't sit down at a set time any day and dash off a poem.

PREMIER—You can't, eh? Why not? How about this American hustler, Eddie Guest they call him? He not only strikes out a bally good rhyme every week day, but a longer one on Sundays as well.

POET—But, Mac—PREMIER—And in addition he whips off greeting card verses and guest room rhymes. "Lo' blimey, Masefield, I think you're an idler!"

POET—I can't help it, Mac.

PREMIER—But the Queen's expecting every day to read a poem by you.

POET—Why doesn't she get a copy of my selections?

PREMIER—Well, Queen Mary read some of your old poems, and she didn't exactly like them.

POET—Well, tell her I don't exactly like her hair.

PREMIER—Anyway, Masefield, I wish you would write up a poem and get it over to us quick.

POET—What about?

PREMIER—Oh, lets have something about the country in general.

POET—Nothing doing on that, Ramsay. Do you know I've tossed around nights, courting the Muse, and can't find a single word to rhyme with Britain except kitten and mittens.

PREMIER—How about knitten? You could work the Queen in on that, too.

POET—I don't think it would be a very good idea, Mac. I want to do something bigger.

PREMIER—Masefield, you're a disappointment. Here I put you up for nomination by the Cabinet and

After that barrel-bottle-and-cork ruling, no wonder the Supreme Court needs a Philadelphia lawyer on the bench.

GOLDEN DAWN
 BY MARC O'FARRELL

Copyright 1930, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
 This story is based on Warner Bros. Vitaphone production of the play by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS

Though fair of skin, Dawn, mystery girl of the African tribe in the British East African Protectorate believes she is black. Tom Allen, young plantation owner, loves her. He overheard secret of her Caucasian birth. Dawn is being consecrated as mystic bride of the local black god. Shep, bluffing whip-man, has concocted false story about Tom violating the sanctuaries of the god, and surprising Dawn in vigil. Captain Eric, German commander of the British seized territory, orders Tom to England. Shep plans to attack Dawn next day in the temple.

After crossing the canyon near the field of the Tree of the Black God, Tom Allen abandoned all plans for an immediate rescue of Dawn and turned his thoughts to his new life. He quickly resigned himself to the fate returning him to England. At home he would immediately offer himself for war service. He was unusually well fitted for military duty. A graduate of a military college, he would have no trouble in winning a commission, but it was his determination to enter the ranks to save all possible time.

As the other joyful prisoners roared lyrically on the remoteness of Tipperary, Tom and Anzac talked. Anzac, who had found it difficult to subdue his own joy to give sympathy to Tom, now was cheered to observe him in better spirits.

"Old England," he began tentatively, "there's the place, eh, Tom?"

"The most glorious in the world," Tom said heartily. "It's a pity I'm not going to see more of it this time."

"You'll see it plenty," the Australian predicted.

"No," Tom returned, "on the day of my arrival I'm going to present myself to a recruiting office. I want to see the war."

"What's this we've been having," demanded the astonished Anzac. "Derby Day?"

"Don't you want to fight for your Motherland?" Tom asked with mock severity.

Anzac was disturbed to have his patriotism questioned. "Sure I do," he insisted, "but I want to see a little more of these lands I'm fighting for. I'm a good loyal Australian, but you can't have a fairer chance to the crown when you think that this hell hole is part of its colonies—or was till the Germans grabbed it."

"When you get to London," promised Tom, "the British spirit will take hold of you again. Mark my words, I'm bursting into a recruiting office before you know what you're about."

"Maybe," conceded Anzac, "but that'll be because I'm full of stout. All I want is a few visits to the pubs. If I can get a few easy remittances from some barmaids I used to know, I'll probably run off to war to be safe."

"Sure," agreed Tom, "I'll see you in Flanders."

The ten Englishmen found the German commandant, Tom, who acted as spokesman, begged as a subject of Great Britain to be excused from carrying messages calculated to add the military strength of the enemy ranks. "Moreover, sir," he told the commandant, "Captain Eric and I were peace time friends and as my captor he accorded me every possible kindness. I should feel that I was speaking disparagingly of my host."

"From that I take it," observed the commandant, with a shrewd gleam in his eye, "that Captain Eric's command is not as secure as we might wish."

"Thank you," replied Tom, "such an assurance to him would please me beyond description."

"And when you arrive in London," said the commandant smiling, "if you can persuade your Parliament that we Germans have some nice fellows on our side, too."

"I won't see many Parliaments," explained Tom, also smiling, "as I plan to spend most of my time in France."

"Not, I hope," returned the German, "as my war-time host."

"It would please me more, sir," said Tom, "to act as your official host right here at Taberna."

"A not impossible pleasure," admitted the German. "Fortunes of war, you know."

"Exactly, sir."

When the prisoners, freshly provisioned and provided with trail maps, pressed on to the seaport, Tom was ragged for threatening to displace the German commandant of the town.

"What did you hope for," asked one, "an attack by us ten?"

"Why not?" asked Tom humorously. "You're all good Englishmen and fond of fighting, aren't you?"

"Listen," volunteered one prisoner, "I wouldn't fire one shot in conquest of the whole of Africa if the whole of Africa were my personal property, with pound notes growing like leaves and if every monkey swinging in the trees turned into a beautiful English girl with an exclusive crush on me!"

"My sentiments precisely!"

"And the rivers running ale!"

"And nothing but shade?"

"And Shep Keyes in jail."

"Shep Keyes. Ahhhhh! That's who Tom wants to get!"

"You seem to be worshipping a little yourself tonight," he observed. She bestowed a haughty glance upon him, such as a goddess might be presumed to bestow, and continued down the trail. But he stepped in front of her.

"You can't scare me 'cause you lives in de temple," he assured her. "I ain't even 'traid of Malungu. I've got no more use for dis religion of de niggers dan you has, so don't expect to be high and mighty wid me."

"Let me pass," demanded Dawn. "First I wants to talk wid you," countered Shep. "I've got some news about yu' white lover."

"Tom?" cried Dawn involuntarily.

"It didn't take you long to guess," commented Shep shrewdly. "How

School nurse says all girls should know this

His words terrified her. She was no longer able to mask her feelings. In an agitated voice she requested that she be allowed to return to temple. She stepped aside.

"You better get back here," he said, "cause you ain't got to be dere much longer."

She paused and turned inquiring eyes on him.

"Maybe I've goin' to take you out o' dere," he added. "Down at de German headquarters dey's gettin' worried. Captain Eric can't get no more soldiers for Germany and de English is sendin' all dere men to France and we can have our jungles back again."

"De boys down on him wildy. 'The people of Malungu won't fight against the whites,' she declared. 'They will listen to their Thabu, and I won't let them burn and kill. I will tell them that Malungu forbids it.'"

"De knows Shep Keyes can do more dan Malungu," he returned unperturbed. "Since you been Thabu Malungu ain't been good to dese niggers. An' if I tells dem dey is making dere prayers to a white woman dey will burn you on de Hill or Skile."

"White woman?!" The shock of his announcement made faint.

"Sure you is. I knows it an' Mooda knows I knows it," Shep told her. "An' when dey hears it dey will understand why you likes dis white snake Tom Allen. But he concluded, 'he ain't comin' round here no more, and when I take back de settlement, I's goin' to let you be Thabu. But you ain't goin' to be Shep Keyes' Thabu, not Malungu's."

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically, and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

Two Held In Race Riots

SALINAS, May 22.—UP—Two youths, Fred Shott, 20, and Zelman McConnell, 24, were under arrest here today, while a third youth, John Rutherford, 21, was a fugitive in Southern California following renewed investigation of the fatal shooting of a Filipino during the Watsonville race riots last January. A woman, piqued because her husband was being made the "goat" in an auto theft case in which the youths were implicated, is said to have given the authorities damaging evidence against them.

LOVE AGAIN FINDS A WAY

Love can always find a way. At least such is the experience of John Toffoli, local radio star, and Miss Aurelia Bravin of El Cerrito, who were balked Wednesday in their plans for a Saturday wedding.

But although their plans for a Saturday wedding went awry, the couple will be married Sunday morning at 11:30, with the aid of an airplane.

The young couple journeyed to Martinez, Wednesday to obtain their marriage license.

The county clerk, in a friendly manner, asked them when the happy day was to arrive, and when they answered "Saturday," he put a crimp in their plans by informing them of the state law, which is unchangeable, even by the wiles of cupid.

Toffoli counted the days until Sunday and told the clerk that it was five days, and the law said three days after the time of application. The clerk, however, told them of the catch in the law, which rules that three days must elapse, not counting the day the license is issued, and the day it is received.

But Toffoli is a man of resource, and decided that the wedding would be put over until Sunday morning, and the license would be brought from Martinez by airplane.

Star Mothers Leave For Trip To Battlefields

eran's council, J. U. Barry, president, spoke a few words and wished them a happy trip.

In addition to representatives from practically all veteran organizations, several relatives and friends of the three mothers were present. They were: J. N. Long, county supervisor; Chief of Police Dan Cox, Capt. L. E. Jones, Fire Chief W. P. Cooper, B. X. Tucker, principal of Richmond union high school, City Manager James McVittie.

As the train pulled away, the high school band, under the direction of George Morris played "America."
The group which formed the escort to the mothers, consisted of: Police Chief Dan Cox, Captain L. E. Jones, Sergeant John Kinsley, Officers Allen Cundy, J. E. Kynoch, Chester Lilly, Lou Braden, C. E. Haines and James Arbuckle.

Air Cadet Dies

In Plane Crash

RIVERSIDE, May 22.—UP—Making his first solo flight, Lieut. Harland DeKaye, March Field army cadet was killed instantly today when his plane apparently developed motor trouble and went into a tailspin over dry lake. He was one of a class of 46 cadets who came here from West Point last fall. His home was in Koshna, Wis.

SLAYER TELLS OF KILLING WITNESS

disability handicapped him. She entered a farmhouse, and the authorities were notified. They found Sturtevant's body. He had been shot twice and the body had been thrown over a 15-foot embankment.

Although seriously wounded with a bullet in the shoulder and another in a lung, Mrs. Berri is expected to recover.

Jury Dismissed

As the manhunt got under way today, the jury considering the case against Berri and eight others told Federal Judge Kerrigan that a verdict had not been arrived at. The judge dismissed the jury and ordered a new trial.

Mrs. Berri was made the defendant in a divorce suit in San Rafael recently in which Sturtevant was named co-respondent. Berri previously had accused Sturtevant of horse stealing.

The liquor trial resulted from the finding of a still on Berri's ranch in March, 1928. Sturtevant originally, was a defendant also, but he pleaded guilty and testified against Berri and the others.

Statements Made

Sturtevant was to have been sentenced for his part in the alleged conspiracy today.

Statements made by Mrs. Berri and Lucich conflict in many instances. Lucich told police that he was invited to take a ride, and that Sturtevant drew a gun and beat him to the draw. Then, he said, Mrs. Berri shot at him five times, and he wounded her. "I could have got her too, if I had wanted to," he said.

Ex-Convict

Police plan to take Lucich to Marin county and have him reconstruct the crime, so that his story may be checked against the story told by Mrs. Berri.

At first police inclined to the theory that rum runners sought revenge because Sturtevant became a government witness, but tonight they were puzzled because of Lucich's voluntary surrender.

Lucich is a small man, 39 years old. He has been in trouble many times, having served in San Quentin prison. He also admits frankly that he lost his leg when rival hijackers shot and left him for dead.

Legion Post In Plans For Big Barbecue

Plans were also made to entertain the disabled war veterans in the Livermore hospital some time in June. Commander Lowell R. Sears said that a large number of local legionnaires would attend the hospital to present a program for the sick veterans.

A large auto caravan of legionnaires is scheduled to leave Richmond June 15, to attend the celebration of the American Legion day at Yountville.

Following the meeting last night, members were entertained by a number of boxing bouts by pupils of Frankie Neil, former banlamweight champion of the world.

Neil himself donned the gloves and proved to the satisfaction of all and sundry that he still retains some of the cleverness which won him a world title.

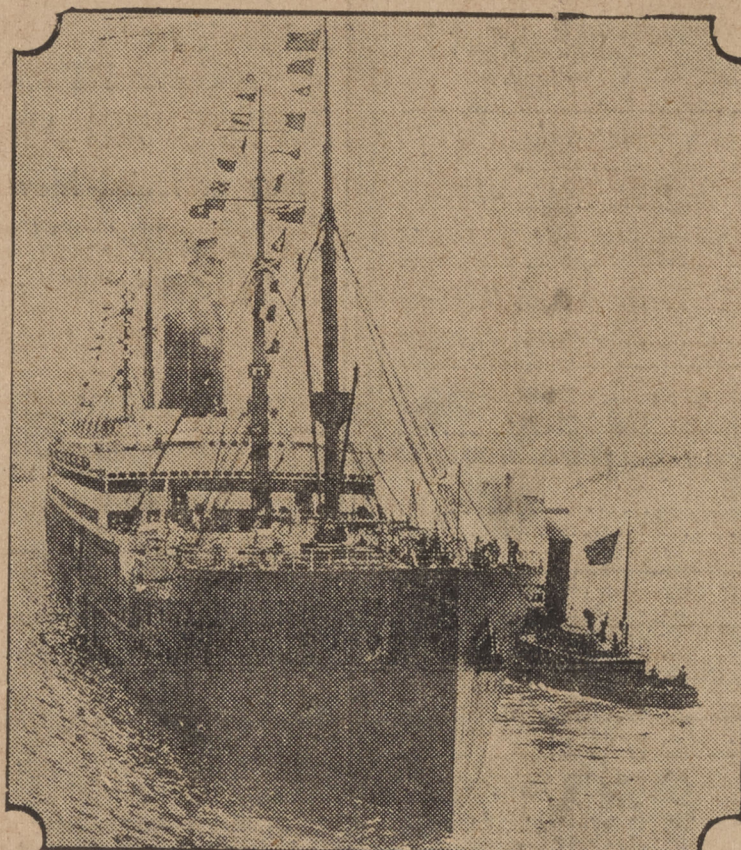

At the close of the evening, a banquet was served by a committee composed of L. R. Outman, J. H. Johnson and W. B. Richardson.

On June 7, a large delegation of Legionnaires will journey to Martinez where State Commander Clarence Kincaid will pay his official visit to the Ninth District of American Legion posts.

Refrigeration Warning Given To Housewives

A recent publication of the bureau of Home Economics of the United States department of agriculture, warns careful housewives that dry cold robs vegetables of precious vitamins, juices and flavors. Food properly refrigerated is an important matter to children in the hot days of summer.

Dr. Martha Manning, home refrigeration expert, gives a few pointers on how best to keep perishable foods:

"Immediately upon delivery, place milk, cream, butter and cottage cheese in the compartment just under the ice in a side icing refrigerator, or in the center of the top shelf of a top icer, where the air, falling direct from the ice, is coldest. Dairy products are the most perishable of foods, keeping best at temperatures of not over 45 degrees—temperatures easily kept in the milk compartments of modern, well constructed and well iced refrigerators.

GIRL PRAISED FOR ESSAY ON LEAGUE

Betty Jackson, 17 year old graduating senior of Richmond Union high school, has received the $25 prize offered by the California association for the best essay submitted by a northern California high school student on the subject "The League of Nations."

The work of the local girl received much praise from the sponsors and judges of the contest including Mrs. Chester Rowell, wife of the famous columnist. The money was contributed by Rowell. Betty Jackson was one of 48 contestants for the honors. Miss Jackson has been identified with fine scholarship and social activities at the Richmond Union high school, and is at present editor of the Hi-Nus weekly high school publication.

The following letter was received by Dorothy Cox of the Richmond Union high school faculty and local director of the contest.

Dear Miss Cox:

It gives me great pleasure to tell you that Betty Jackson, one of your students who took part in the National Competitive Examination on the League of Nations, has won the Northern California prize of $25.00 for the best paper submitted from Northern California.

I am enclosing a check for that amount. The announcement of the prize was made at a luncheon meeting of the League of Nations Association by Mr. Chester Rowell who contributed the money. Mrs. Wm. Lucas who judged the papers spoke very highly of Betty's paper and also told our members that such a paper could only have been written by a student who had very fine teachers.

Very cordially,
CAMILLA LOYALL,
Secretary.
